Late Results of Tuesday Primaries

Washington, Sept. 12.—(AP)—As returns from yesterday's state primaries were tabulated today, the various contests took shape as follows:

The nomination of Charles W. Tobey, Republican, for the Governorship of New Hampshire was conceded by Ora A. Brown of Ashland. Former mayor Iato D. Sargent of Nashua won the Democratic gubernatorial nomination over Charles W. Ward of Manchester.

C. Douglas Buck, son-in-law of Senator Dupont, was nominated for Governor of Delaware by the Republican state convention. Former Governor John G. Townsend, Jr., and Representative Robert G. Houston were nominated for the Senate and House respectively.

In Vermont, Governor John E. Weeks defeated Mayor Edward H. Devitt of Montpelier for the Republican gubernatorial nomination, the only contest for a major office in either party.

Robert S. Hall was leading T. Price Dale in a Democratic run off primary for representative from the sixth Mississippi district.

Representative James O' Connor won over J. A. Brulard for Representative from the first district of Louisiana.

In Colorado, Attorney General William L. Boatright was in the lead for the Republican nomination for Governor and William R. Eaton was narrowly ahead in the race for Representative from the first district.

Representative S. Harrison White had a comfortable lead in the contest for the Democratic Congressional nomination.

A close battle between Governor Roland H. Hartley and E. L. French for the Republican gubernatorial nomination in Washington developed with Hartley maintaining a slight advantage. Homer T. Bone had a narrow lead over Representative Albert Johnson for the Republican Congressional nomination in the third district. Former Senator Poindexter trailed Judge Kenneth MacKintosh for the Senate. A. Scott Bullitt was leading for the Democratic gubernatorial nomination and Senator Dill was ahead in his race to succeed himself.

Senator Ashurst and Governor G. W. P. Hunt, Democrats seeking re-nomination in Arizona, were well ahead of C. W. Rutherford and J. H. Kerby. Ralph H. Cameron was ahead of F. R. Stewart for the Republican Senatorial nomination and John C. Phillips led John H. Udall and Celora M. Stoddard for the Republican gubernatorial nomination.

With the public appetite for stocks whetted by reports that world famous operators had made fabulous winnings in this stock pool market, the little trouble in getting an outside following by merely intimating that so and so had taken a position in the stock.

A fact that aroused favorable comment in some quarters was the gradual looking up of the railroad shares, some of which were up a couple of points. One of the outstanding incidents of the forenoon proceedings was the purchase of a block of 30,000 shares of Stanley Company of America at 69 1/2, a rise of 10 1/2. John Manville went up 7 1/2 to 140 1/2, also a new peak.

The ruling rate for call loans was maintained at 7 1/2 per cent.

The closing was strong. Heavy buying of General Motors, which crossed 280, initiated a new forward movement, carrying with it some of the sluggish like American International Tobacco Products Columbia Gas, Westinghouse Electric, International Harvester and Du Pont.

The rise in Du Pont ran to around 10 points. U. S. Steel, when it touched 159 1/2, was exactly one point higher than its previous 1928 top. Montgomery Ward lost 5 points on profit taking. Total sales approximately 4,500,000.

Two Democratic
Meets in Texas

Dallas, Tex., Sept. 12.—(AP)—The Democratic party in Texas, headed by Governor Dan Moody, stood pledged today to support Governor Alfred E. Smith of New York for President and at the same time to continue the fight to exterminate the liquor traffic. After one of the most violent conventions the party has ever held.

Governor Moody's first public statement of his position and the platform declarations came only after the atmosphere of yesterday's convention had been cleared of anti-Smith sentiment through the medium of a wholesale expulsion, or bolt depending on the viewpoint, of all anti-Smith elements from the auditorium.

The exodus of the recalcitrants was marked by half a dozen fist fights over county standards and scenes of wild confusion.

According to the regulars, the bolters were made up chiefly of people who never claimed to be delegates, or disgruntled contestants for seats in the convention who were denied places on the roll and replaced by loyal Smith delegates.

Within an hour the anti-Smith group had completed an organization adopted resolutions condemning Governor Smith and praising Herbert Hoover, and had disbanded to start its campaign.

Governor Moody explained his position in an address before the regular convention accepting renomination, by placing party loyalty above personal opinion and asserting the Republican record was one of corruption in high places and that prohibitionists must look to the Democratic party for law enforcement.

The defendants named in a blanket indictment said to be the largest ever returned in the United States, include high police officials, such as Peter P. Walsh, superintendent of police, and two members of the Pennsylvania state legislature, Samuel J. Grenet and Luke Sullivan.

A former prohibition agent is among the lot, as well as a nationally known public links golfer, Samuel Graham, one of Pittsburgh's "blue coats."

The ramifications of the liquor racket, reputed to be the most extensive in the city's history, were uncovered by men employed as investigators by Prohibition Administrator John D. Pennington. These undercover men made "buys" and turned the evidence over to Pennington and United States District Attorney John D. Meyer.

More than 1,000 witnesses went before the grand jury, which brought in the indictment to reveal the inner workings of the liquor ring.

TROUBLED WITH BLADDER YEARS;
NEW HEALTH NOW

"Almost Unbelievable to Know Gly-Cas Has Freed Me From My Suffering," Lady States.

"After authorities and treatments of all kinds had failed to benefit me to say nothing of the years of constant suffering I had endured, my health is 100 per cent better than it has been for years, since I have taken this Gly-Cas medicine."

This remarkable statement was made to the Gly-Cas Man by Mrs. D. C. Beightel, respected Dixon lady, living at 1303 Hemlock Avenue, when he was at the Campbell White Cross Pharmacy, Dixon, explaining this great new vegetable compound which has fairly electrified this entire section with the remarkable relief it has accomplished in scores and scores of cases here in this vicinity.

"For a long number of years I had been a constant sufferer from bladder troubles," Mrs. Beightel continued. "I had spent quite a sum of money for treatments and special preparations to reduce the inflammation and disordered condition of my bladder, but had received no benefit. The condition of my bladder had become so bad that sometimes it acted twenty times in a day. This continual suffering gradually broke down my health—I had almost given up hope of being well again."

"I am certainly thankful that I began taking this Gly-Cas after it was recommended to me for it is simply a wonderful preparation. It is almost unbelievable to me to know now that I am free of bladder trouble, after authorities and treatments of all kinds had given me no benefit."

"Along with this bladder trouble I had chronic constipation but Gly-Cas so relieved the congested condition of my bowels that my former ills from this trouble, such as headaches, dizzy spells, poor appetite and tired feeling, have all disappeared. My health is simply 100 per cent better now than it has been for years and I can honestly say that this Gly-Cas is the only medicine that ever gave me complete satisfaction."

"After all the wonderful results I have received from taking Gly-Cas I am more than willing to say that this medicine is a truly wonderful remedy—one that gives results where others fail."

As with Mrs. Beightel's experience, in case after case of stomach, liver, bowel, blood, nerve troubles, neuritis, rheumatism, where all kinds of other medicines and treatments had failed to give desired results, this great new vegetable Gly-Cas has gone to the root of the suffering and given surprising and complete relief.

A rainbow paints the day.
A black cat takes his slow, deliberate way
Beneath the plum tree's gloom;
And, did I leave my books and this still room,
The scent of rain-washed limes
Would fill the air.

BREAKFAST — Chilled apple sauce, cereal, cream, fish balls, tomato sauce, cornmeal and wheat muffins, milk, coffee.
LUNCHEON — Stuffed eggplant, raisin bread, peach and melon salad, milk, tea.
DINNER — Cauliflower cocktail, mock fillet mignon, French fried potatoes, New England succotash, peach cream in cantaloupes, milk, coffee.

Don't forget the simple expedient of shaping ground round steak in small flat cakes and binding with a strip of bacon held firmly with wooden toothpicks. These can be pan-broiled or really broiled in the broiler just like real fillet mignon.

Cauliflower Cocktail
One small firm head cauliflower, 2 tomatoes, 1 teaspoon minced chives, French dressing.
Remove outer stalks from cauliflower and separate into flowerets. Let stand in cold salt water for one hour. Drain and chill on ice. Peel tomatoes and cut in dice. Dice cauliflower and add tomatoes and minced chives. Pour over French dressing and let stand thirty minutes on ice. Serve in cocktail glasses. This is an unusually pretty cocktail and deliciously tempting.

CHINESE BANDIT "QUEEN" OVERPOWERED BY POSSE
Mukden. (AP)—Wang-ku, "queen" of the bandit brigades of Manchuria, has been arrested. Five of her men assistants are also in jail. The capture of the woman chieftain who, as the leader of several hundred men, had been terrorizing the Huaitai prefecture for months was dramatic. Wang-ku, big and strong, was taken by surprise in the middle of the night, and before being subdued she had knocked out four policemen and seven or eight soldiers with her bare fists. She attributes the loss of her freedom to the fact that she did not have any of her faithful clubs or guns close at hand at the moment.

Wang-ku was brought to Mukden from Fanchiatun the other day in a compartment of the South Manchurian railway under heavy guard. The trial of the bandit leader and the five men is to be held here.

Wabblly Walk Chorus

The part of hard boiled Spike Hamm was played in an inimitable manner by Neil Reagan who gave the part certain individual touches which it would be difficult to imitate, and he brought forth burst of merriment each time he appeared. As the dumb, conceited second "loole", he certainly was an ace, and was a good representative of some of the second lieutenants "over there", having under them in the ranks men far superior to them in mind and education; all loyal soldiers together, however, who would as speedily fight for one another as with one another. In the scene where he wanted Madame to have his clothes pressed, and lost that valuable adjunct to his toilette, his trousers, he was a scream and the French Madame, so beautifully played by Mildred Conley, whose voice is a dream to listen to, suitably rounded out this part of the piece. Willard Jones as Ben Tracy took this difficult role with ease and assurance and his voice and manner were fine. It was difficult to trace the affable Willard, so well were his own characteristics obliterated. As the small town gossip and general supervisor of news he would be hard to duplicate in his part. Hulda, the Swede girl who had a penchant for yodeling was taken by Mrs. Geraldine Welty and she provoked frequent laughs by her misapplication of proverbs and well known sayings, as for instance she remarked in one place, that "people who live in glass houses, gather no moss." Her quiet with Spike, "She's a Home Girl," was a scream. Ben and Spike gave their duet also in a droll manner, with true to life mannerisms of the country bumpkins. Josephine, the sweet daughter of Judge Edwards was well portrayed by Miss Elizabeth Hennessey. Eddie Mac by William Finefield was one of the best characters given both at Durkin Corners, O., and in France, especially when he aspired to the second lieutenant's uniform and left that poor man in dire straits. His singing was well done, also. As Sixty Dunn, Robert Dixon, gave a finished performance, playing a difficult role with the ease of a veteran actor, and his singing was especially enjoyable. He has a sweet clear voice and his enunciation is excellent. His duets with Sally, were gems of the evening. Mrs. Dunn, Sixty's mother was excellently given by Mrs. O. E. Wilcox. She made a delightfully sweet mother, and her softly spoken words were at the same time, easily heard all over the house. In Sally Dae, one of the stars of the evening, Miss Marion Cahill gave evidence of true histrionic talent, and her singing was especially enjoyable. She has a sweet, clear voice and sings with much expression. As the representative of the booking company and later as the nurse in France she was charming. It was no wonder that all the "boys" were crazy about her, from Lieut. Hamm to the privates. "Somebody Else May Be Telling Her Something," by Sally, Bill, Sleepy and Monkey, was one of the hits of the program. It is indeed difficult to pick out special favorites so uniformly good were all the numbers. Sally's singing with Sixty called forth much applause, always.

Judge Edwards was a part requiring clearness of diction to put the story over to the audience and William Hansen certainly carried the burden well. Madame by Miss Mildred Conley was true to type and her voice is charming and her action delightful. Col. Ruffskin by James Prosser was a remarkably well done bit. As the seasoned soldier and officer or "ossifer", as Spike called it, he was perfect, even if he WAS hard boiled, also. Sleepy by Rae Arnold, Bill Devine by Paul Reilly, and Monkey Toed, by Peter Phalen, radiated the proper atmosphere of the doughboy in France; ready to fight the enemy together, and when he had disappeared to band together to cause discomfort to some second "loole", who was trying to act superior; or ever ready to accord honor to a really fine officer, and they knew him when they saw one, no mistaking that.

Much can be said for the charming chorus of girls who added to general effect of beauty in many scenes. Their singing and dancing was equal that of professionals. In her solo work and dancing Lucille Kelley, a favorite with Dixon audiences, was as always, delightful.

Just before the second act Edward Jones appeared before the curtain and thanked the audience for their patronage and generous applause, and the cast and chorus for hard work in behalf of the Knights of Columbus, and then just before the final curtain he persuaded the director of the production, N. D. Davidson, to appear, in answer to repeated calls for him, and Mr. Davidson made a brief but gracious little speech thanking all for their cooperation and hard work. It was indeed a gala night, and the play "Sixty Miles an Hour," a great pleasure and a greater success. The Telegraph wonders if the production will not be repeated, as those who did not see it last night, will surely want to after talking with those who did.

The members of the cast of the play will be guests of the Knights of Columbus at a banquet at the Hotel Dixon tomorrow evening in appreciation of their efforts in making the production the success it was.

TURN THE RASCALS OUT.

It would be refreshing if Illinois Democrats could think of some reason why they should be elected. Up to date all they have been talking about is why the Republicans should be defeated.

The meeting in Dixon the other night was typical of every meeting they have conducted in this campaign—a tirade against the party in power, with torrents of abuse and false charges and lots of "viewing with alarm" but no real plausible reason why they should have the affairs of state turned over to them. There is nothing suggested to the voter that would give him any reason to support the Democrats candidates. Their campaign is just the age-old cry of "turn the rascals out."

We believe the voters of Illinois will have to hear something more convincing before they turn this state over to the Chicago Tammany and its hand-picked slate of candidates. Mud slinging and false abuse of the opponent does not carry elections in this state.

DRIVING 80 MILES AN HOUR.

A New York society couple recently bet that they could drive their automobile to Boston in less time than the fastest train between the two cities required. They did it and won their bet; but the Massachusetts state police are looking for them, because they broke so many speed laws.

The driver, interviewed by reporters, is quoted as saying complacently that "we had her up around 80" a good part of the time. He admitted that they "had a few narrow escapes," but said they got through unharmed.

All automobile drivers should hope that the police get hold of this pair. Skimming over main roads at 80 miles an hour is little less than idiocy. No man has the right to endanger other motorists in that way. A short jail sentence might persuade this wealthy thrill-seeker that trying to beat fast trains with an automobile is not a sport that any community can countenance.

AMELIA'S PROFESSION.

If the grandparents of the well-known Miss Amelia Earhart could have foreseen that sort of career their descendant would have they doubtless would have been stupefied beyond the power of speech.

In their day no woman ever sought a "career" unless impelled by bitter necessity; and then the only things open to her were such jobs as governess, seamstress and schoolmarm.

But Miss Earhart blithely flies across the Atlantic and then accepts a job as associate editor of the Cosmopolitan magazine, to handle a new department devoted to aviation.

Verily, there is a great gulf between the status of the young woman of today and the young woman of her grandmother's girlhood.

FREE BRAKE TESTS.

Municipal authorities and auto clubs in all parts of the country are adopting, in increasing numbers, the plan of giving free brake tests to all motorists who want them.

It is a good idea. A man's brakes may be good enough for ordinary driving and so lull him to the belief that they need no attention, when as a matter of fact they are not adjusted properly to bring his car to a quick stop in an emergency. And the emergency, be it noted, is just the time when the car must stop quickly to avert a tragedy.

The man who drives with faulty brakes in endangering his own life and the lives of his fellow citizens. Yet many do it innocently, not knowing that their brakes need adjustment. These free tests are excellent things. They should be extended.

Among strange recent arrivals in Washington is the thick-head. Don't be alarmed, however, it's only a bird sent to National Museum.

One grand thing about fall anyway: A man has four more pockets in a vest in which to stow useless articles.

Wonder if that popular song, "The Best Things in Life Are Free," wasn't brought back to America by some of the summer visitors to Edinburgh.

Madrid has placed a ban on "extemporaneous night singing." So that's the name of that noise the cats make!

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

The lion that each Tynmite had seen gave them an awful fright. The bunch ran till they reached a tree. Then climbed away up high. Right shortly they were safe and sound. The lion stood down on the ground. "Wouldn't hurt if you should bite us," shouted Scouty. "Please don't try!" "Why he can't bite us," way up here," said Carpy. "There's no cause for fear as long as we stay in this tree. I wish he'd go away. It makes me mad to think that he has been as mean as mean can be. He came right up and chased us and it really spoiled our play."

Then Clowny said, "Perhaps he's tame. Let's try and pat the beast. Who's game? I don't think he will hurt us," cause we're all so very small. Let's drop right to the ground, and then we'll scamper right back up again if he begins to growl at us. Why, that's no trick at all."

And so the whole bunch quickly dropped. The lion flopped its tail and stopped to look the Tynites over. Then he squatted on the ground. "See! He won't hurt us," Clowny cried. "Shucks! I'll walk right up by his side. I'm not one bit afraid now, 'cause a real friend we have found." The others cried, "Be careful now." And Clowny snapped, "Oh, I know how to make friends with an animal. Just watch from where you stand." He surely seemed to have the knack of patting beasts upon the back. The lion turned its head a bit and licked Clowny's hand.

The same stunt all the others tried. Then Carpy said, "Come on, let's ride upon his back. He'll take us all, and we are pleasure bent." They hopped upon its back real quick. The lion jumped up rather slick and looked the Tynites over. Then it bounded on its way.

(The Tynmites have more fun in the next story.)

HEALTH & DIET ADVICE
By Dr. Frank McCoy
"The Fast Way to Health"

Dr. McCoy, Los Angeles specialist, will gladly answer personal questions on health and diet, addressed to him, care of the Telegraph. Enclose stamped, addressed, large envelope for reply.

GOOD VENTILATION.

Almost every person has at some time in his life experienced the desire to fall asleep while attending a lecture or meeting. This is most frequently caused by defective ventilation.

Scientists have made some remarkable investigations into the problems of ventilation, and they have discovered that one of the chief difficulties of crowded rooms is overheating. It has been experimentally proven that a crowded lecture hall filled with drowsy people can be made more comfortable and the audience more wide awake if one or two electric fans are installed. Electric fans do not increase the amount of oxygen in the air, or decrease the amount of great importance for churches, theatres and lecture halls. Of course, it is important not only to have a moving current of air within a room, but also to have a fresh supply of air so that the oxygen may be constantly replenished.

Manufacturers have found that in a well ventilated factory the health of workers is preserved and their productive powers are greatly increased.

After careful experimentation it has been determined that the best temperature for comfort in a room is from 68 degrees to 72 degrees F. When you enter a poorly ventilated room, you probably have noticed an oppressive, bad odor and high temperature. The bad odor is due to several causes, principally perspiration, improperly burned gas, foods and bad breath. The oppressive feeling is due to a large amount of moisture in the room which comes from perspiration and respiration.

During the warm weather when the humidity is high, it is necessary to keep the air constantly stirred up, but in the cold weather, when the air from outside is brought into the house and warmed, it absorbs moisture very rapidly—so rapidly that the moisture of the linings of the nose, throat and bronchial tubes, which must at all times be kept moist, is sometimes evaporated so readily as to produce irritation and inflammations of these membranes. For this reason, a heating system in the winter should provide moisture, and pans of water should be placed on stoves or radiators.

Windows should never be entirely closed, even in the coldest weather. Strong drafts may be prevented by deflecting the current of air by a window board or other contrivance that will throw the incoming air upwardly, or allow the incoming air to be heated by allowing it to pass through or near the heating device. The importance of fresh air at the proper temperature and humidity mostly from harmless vegetable and other color extracts, supplemented by a number of coal tar, or aniline, dyes, approved by the government after painstaking investigation and analysis. As long as their use is solely to enhance the enjoyment of foods and not to conceal their inferiority, I do not consider these colorings particularly harmful, especially since they are used in such limited quantities.

QUESTION—W. K. asks: "What causes pellagra?"

ANSWER—Pellagra is a disorder caused partly by the absence of organic minerals in your food, and partly because of the acidosis produced from using an excess of over-refined starch—taking for example, such devalitized food as cornmeal from which the hull has been entirely removed. My article "Healthful Menus" gives a well balanced diet for those suffering from disorders from dietary errors. If you will send me a request for this article, addressing me in care of this newspaper and enclosing a large, self-addressed, stamped envelope, I will be glad to send it.

MATCHPLAY IS NOW ORDER DAY IN GOLF GAMES

National Amateur Open Tournament Reaches Serious Stage

BY BRIAN BELL
Associated Press Sports Writer
Newton, Mass., Sept. 12.—(AP)—Only 32 of the 143 golfers who started out Monday remained today when the play in the National Amateur championship reached the man-to-man stage. The small but select qualifying class from now on will forsake medal for match play.

After tonight there will be but eight players in the tournament. Two eighteen hole matches, "sudden death" the players call them and the end is not always painless, will be followed by 36 hole matches each day for the remainder of the week.

The casualties in the 36-hole qualifying round included some well known stars: Roland MacKenzie, Walker Cup player; S. Davidson Herron, William C. Fowles, Jr., and Jesse P. Guilford, former National Amateur champion. Eugene Homans, Walker Cup alternate and others were left to watch their fellows from the gallery. Five members of the British Walker Cup team fell.

George Voigt captured the medal by one stroke. Bobby Jones, the champion, was in with a score of 151, safe but not brilliant golf rated by the great shot maker's normal game. The champion, however, was himself again over a great part of his second round.

Three national champions were left in the competition. Jones, T. P. Perkins, the British amateur champion, and Ross Somerville, amateur champion of Canada. Perkins was supported by two other British players, John E. Beck and Eustace F. Storey. Somerville had Gordon Taylor to keep him company.

Watching the Big Scoreboard

New York, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Intent on sweeping the series, Miller Huggins, mite manager of the New York Yankees, will send Waite Hoyt to the firing line in the fourth and final game of the series with the Philadelphia Athletics at the Yankee Stadium today.

Hoyt has won 18 games and lost only 5 this season. Connie Mack probably will call upon George Earnshaw, former Baltimore speedball star, to stop the Yankees' rush, and get the Athletics back into the running.

"Lefty" Grove, Mack's star port-sider took a heart-breaking defeat yesterday. For seven innings he had the Yankees waving futile bats as his fast one whizzed up to the plate. Four hits and a single run represented the sum total of the champions' offensive at that time and Grove entered the act of the eighth with a 3 to 1 lead.

And then just as Lefty was ready to record his 15th straight victory and his 23rd of the season, the blow fell. A pass, a single, a wild throw by Jimmy Dykes, a wild pitch by Grove himself and Gehrig's single tied up the game, with nobody out. That brought the Babe to the plate. Grove elected to pitch to him for a pass would bring up Meusel who had wielded a wicked warclub in the first two games of the series. The Babe bunted the first pitch foul and took a called ball before driving the third pitch into the right field stands as 50,000 fans broke into a delicious demonstration of joy. Grove quickly retired the side after that mighty wall-bat but the damage had been done. Henry Johnson got rid of three Athletic pinch hitters—Cobb, Collins and French—in the ninth and the game was over with the Yanks on the long end of a 5 to 3 score. It was Johnson's fifth victory over the A's in six starts and Grove's sixth defeat in seven against the champions.

The victory sent the Yankees into a two and a half game lead.

In the other American League engagements the St. Louis Browns beat Cleveland, 16 to 6, in a game which saw 14 doubles pounded out, and Detroit defeated Chicago, 7 to 6, when John Stone, recruit outfielder, cracked out a home run with two on base in the eighth.

Taking their second double header in as many days from the Boston Braves, the New York Giants ousted the Chicago Cubs from second place in the National League race. The scores were 11 to 6 and 7 to 6. The first game was a walkaway for the Giants but the second was a dog fight the whole way.

The St. Louis Cardinals retained their two and a half game lead over the field by trouncing Cincinnati, 6 to 3.

The Cubs cracked give Pittsburgh hurlers for 11 hits and romped away with a 9 to 3 victory. The Cubs, however, now trail the Giants by two per centage points.

Brooklyn and Philadelphia again divided a double-header. The Robins took the first by 5 to 2 but dropped the second 4 to 3 when Fred Leach clubbed the first offering of Dazzy Vance, a relief pitcher, into the stands for a home run.

Am. Turf Assn. is Owner Washington Pk.

Chicago, Sept. 12.—(AP)—Washington Park race track, the home of the American Derby, will operate next year under new owners, the American Turf Association having purchased the plant from the Illinois Jockey Club.

The plant will be rebuilt, according to Col. Matt Winn, head of the American Turf Association, and the American Derby, which was run at Arlington Park this year, will be brought back home on a late spring or early summer meeting date.

PRO-FOOTBALL GAMES TO GET SEND-OFF SUNDAY

Chicago Bears to Get First Workout With Fox Valley Stars

Fox Valley Stars football team now appear to be an even match for the Chicago Bears in their game to be played at Exposition Park, Fair Grounds, Aurora, Sunday, Sept. 16th at 2:30 p. m.

The back field will be made up of such stars as "Vic" Gustafson, Captain of the Northwestern University Football Team last year, Earl Britton of Illinois, "Dutch" Durant, Illinois, O'Brien of Beloit, Nelson of Beloit, Witte of E. High Aurora, the latter is being recognized in this territory as another Grange. The ends will be taken care of by Haney, former Captain Indiana, John MacDonald Aurora and Williams of Aurora. The line will average close to two hundred pounds per man, with such stars as "Leff" of Geneva—Center, Thompson of Elgin and Bennett of Wheaton—Tackles, H. Hochspring, Aurora, Hanson St. Charles—Guards, and an array of utility men that would look good to any professional team in this district. This game promises to be one of the best that has been scheduled in many a year, and the management should be complimented in being able to stage such a combat on the home lot.

The Chicago Bears play their Home Games at the Cubs Park Chicago, and on several occasions last season it was necessary to close the gates on account of the over-flowing crowd, and it is expected that a capacity crowd will be on hand to witness this battle.

French Dominate in Forest Hills Play

Forest Hills, N. Y., Sept. 12.—(AP)—French domination of the United States national tennis singles championship today was at a new high level.

Five Frenchmen started play in the second round yesterday and five won. Heading this formidable group are Henri Cochet and Jean Borotra, the Davis Cup "Musketeers" who have yet to lose a set in this tournament. Cochet by 7-5, 6-3, 6-3, defeated Junior Coen of Kansas City yesterday. His opponent today is Fritz Mercier.

Borotra defeated Arnould Jones of Providence, former Yale tennis captain, 6-2, 6-3, 6-4, yesterday. Wilmer Allison, seeded American, was beaten yesterday by one of the younger Frenchmen, Rene de Buzet, 2-6, 1-6, 6-4, 6-4, 6-1.

The other two Frenchmen who fought their way through the second round were Jacques Brugnon, the oldest member of the delegation, and Christian Boususs, the youngest.

Every one of the five from France has drawn an American opponent for today's play.

Canoeists Invited to Rockford Meet

When the big water carnival took place last Labor Day, the canoeists of Rockford were invited to attend and to take part. This was much appreciated and a good number were in attendance. The local Y. M. C. A. has been notified of the Canoe Regatta at Rockford on next Sunday and all interested in canoeing are invited to come. The affair is being sponsored by the Tacoma Canoe Club and will no doubt draw a large number of participants and spectators. Those interested in going are asked to leave their names at the office of the Y. M. C. A.

GOLFERS FINDING BRAE BURN COURSE IS TOUGH ON THEM

Mediocre Playing Marked National Amateur Tourney Today

BULLETIN
Brae Burn Country Club, Newton, Mass., Sept. 11.—(AP)—In spite of a mediocre round, featured by poor putting, George Van Elm of Detroit, former title holder, by carding 79, seven over par, assumed an early lead today in the National Amateur golf championship qualifying test. With his 73 of yesterday he had a two day 36-hole total of 152.

D. J. Armstrong, Aurora, Ill., had his troubles today scoring 80 after a fine 73 yesterday but his 153 put him well to the front among the early finishers, a stroke behind Van Elm.

BY BRIAN BELL

Associated Press Sports Writer
Newton, Mass., Sept. 11.—(AP)—Start of the second 18 holes in the qualifying round of the National Amateur golf championship today found some of the youngsters declaring that Brae Burn is not so tough as it looks. Not all the veterans would agree with the exception of George Von Elm all the former champions in the hunt for encores on the title found that the course had not been softened to any considerable extent.

Von Elm with a 73 was only one stroke over par for the first 18 holes but the scores of the other eight who have occupied a seat on the amateur golf throne ranged from the 77 of Bobby Jones, the champion, to the 91 scored by S. Davidson Herron, Francis Oulmet, Jess Sweetser and Max Marston had 78, Jesse Guilford, Chick Evans and William C. Fowles, Jr., scored 80.

George Voigt, who has his good and bad days in golf and is very good when he is good, started the second half of the 36 hole qualifying test tied with Harrison R. Johnston for the lead at 71. These sterling golfers were the only ones in the field of 143 to shade par. C. Ross Somerville, amateur champion of Canada, equalled perfect figures—72.

The United States Golf Association prepared an annual list of ten stars including the names of Jones, Von Elm, Oulmet, Sweetser, Frank Dolp, Evans, Johnston, Watts Gunn, Dr. O. F. Willing and Roland McKenzie, the first eight to be seeded if they survived the qualifying 36-holes. To replace any of the first stalwarts falling by the wayside a supplementary ranking of ten was announced with George Dawson, Guilford, Eddie Held, Eugene Homans, Marston, Maurice McCarthy, Jr., Roy Moe, Bon Stein, George Voigt and Frederick J. Wright, Jr.

T. P. Perkins, the British amateur champion, played good golf on his first attempt to score 76 and indicated that he would bear watching.

The concluding holes of qualifying tests over the medal play route today will pave the way for match play for 32 survivors, two eighteen holes tomorrow reducing the field to eight to play Thursday, leading to the semi-finals Friday and final Saturday, the play for the last three days of the week to be over the 36 hole route.

FASHIONABLE RESORTS

SNUB "MOURNFUL MARY"
Bexhill, England.—(AP)—"Mournful Mary" has lost her job. She has been given a full month's notice, and the nerve-racked residents of the fashionable resorts within sound of her walls are jubilant.

The only friends "Mournful Mary" has are the members of the imperial merchant service guild, which guards the interests of merchant seamen. They have submitted to a protest against her dismissal with Trinity House.

What will fog-bound ships do, they ask indignantly, if Mary's piercing shriek fails to warn them that they are approaching the most dangerous turning in the English Channel? For Mary is the fog-horn of the Royal Sovereign Lightship, and if she isn't popular with the residents at least the sailors appreciate her.

THE CIGAR THAT BROUGHT THE NICKEL BACK

Have you surrendered to the idea that five cents can no longer buy an enjoyable cigar? Here's one that not only disputes that idea, but gives your nickels the biggest cigar-buying power they ever had: Havana Ribbon.

So enormous is the production of this widely known favorite that the manufacturers are able to use tobaccos you generally find only in higher priced cigars. Think of it! . . . No bitter, raspy under-ripe top leaves of the tobacco plant. No flat, insipid over-ripe bottom leaves. No crumbling "scraps." Long-filler, fully-ripe middle leaves from heart to wrapper! Know what that means? A smoke so true, smooth, fragrant, flavorful and mellow-mild you'll scarce believe your taste. Man, find, beg or borrow a nickel! Do a quick-step to the nearest cigar counter and sail into a Havana Ribbon! Better still, corral a quarter, buy a Practical Pocket Package of five and make the whole day a song of smoke contentment.

EMMERSON SAYS FARMER PROBLEM IS NATIONAL ONE

But Promises to Do Everything He Can for Agriculture

Fairfield, Ill., Sept. 12.—(AP)—Ways in which the state government may aid Illinois farmers were outlined in an address here last night by Louis L. Emerson, Republican candidate for governor.

The agricultural problem, he said, is national in its scope and its solution

"must be undertaken by the national government." Mr. Hoover, he said has discussed this subject at length and the Republican party "offers the only hope of adequate relief of the farmers from their present situation."

There are important functions, however, which the State government can perform to assist agriculture in Illinois pending or supplementing national legislation, Mr. Emerson added.

"The details of this state program," he said "must be considered and determined upon by practical leaders of agricultural interests who are most familiar with the farmers' problems."

"The state government through its grain and produce inspection service, its regulation of elevators and supervision over the commission merchants and other marketing agents is in a position to be of great service in improving the conditions under which the farm products of the state are marketed. I propose to bring about that improvement by appointing the best qualified men to positions having to do with these marketing activities and by recommending such changes in present laws as may aid in putting the marketing of farm products on as high a plane of efficiency as possible.

"Through the state department of agriculture and the divisions having to do with the livestock industry there are many opportunities to serve Illinois farmers and I shall do all in my power to use these opportunities to the fullest advantage.

"I am interested in making of the Illinois State Fair an annual exposition that may truly reflect the great agricultural resources of the state and I am in favor of encouraging the work being done by the University of Illinois through its experimental station and its agricultural college and extension departments.

"Hard roads and automobiles have made it easy for criminal gangs to operate in the country and one of the most disquieting developments of recent years is the rapid increase in stealing on the farms. The last legislature enacted a poultry dealers' license law which has been of great benefit in checking this form of crime. I shall recommend such additional legislation as may be necessary to protect the property of our rural residents.

"This is only a brief reference to the many ways in which the administration of the state government may be used for the benefit of agriculture. The voters of Illinois know me and my record and it is not necessary for me to assure that if I am elected governor the farmer will have a dependable friend in the state house."

HOOVER'S FARM RELIEF SCHEME GOES FARTHER

Dean Cox of Michigan University Tells of Proposals

Herbert Hoover's analysis of the farmers' needs and his proposal for farm relief go farther in understanding and in plan than the celebrated "Des Moines Conference" out of which so many of the recommendations for farm treatment have grown. Mr. Hoover goes farther than the plan of the "Committee of Twenty-two," organized at the Des Moines Conference. He goes farther in his plan for practical, workable relief than the McNary-Haugen Bill.

This is the conclusion of J. F. Cox, Dean of Agriculture in the Michigan State College. Dean Cox was the personal representative of Governor Groesbeck, of Michigan, at the Des Moines Conference and a member of the agricultural "Committee of Twenty-two" as alternate for L. Whitney Watkins. Dean Cox accompanied by Governor Green of Michigan was headed by Congressman Grant M. Hudson, of the Cedar Rapids agricultural conference with Secretary Hoover, August 22.

"Mr. Hoover's program as announced in his speech accepting nomination and further amplified and emphasized at his great West Branch address involves all the basic principles agreed upon at the Des Moines Conference of January 1926, and goes farther than the resolutions of this conference (or of the 'Committee of Twenty-two') and the McNary-Haugen bill, in placing before the nation a practical and workable plan for crop surplus control and agricultural stabilization of direct benefit to one-third of the population and indirect benefit to the remaining two-thirds," said Dean Cox.

"At the Des Moines Conference which was called by Governor Hamer and which was composed of governors and their representatives from eleven states—Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Wisconsin, Illinois, Iowa, Missouri, Nebraska, Kansas, Minnesota and South Dakota—the following resolutions were adopted, the Dickinson bill being indorsed in principle and defined as—

"(1)—A measure providing for a Federal agricultural board to administer an equalization responsibility for the surplus farm commodities, any deficit that may be incurred to be borne by the producers themselves, and the actual buying, selling and storing involved in handling the surplus to be done with the support of the board by the organizations of the producers themselves, with provision for the immediate operation through other agencies wherever producer organizations cannot be organized for immediate needs."

"(2)—The right of leadership of farmers through farm organizations was recognized and the support of the conference pledged."

"(3)—The conference pledged itself not to surrender these principles."

Mr. Hoover now proposes:

"(1)—A Federal farm board to work with farm co-operatives."

"(2)—He proposes governmental assistance and an initial advance of capital to enable the agricultural industry to reach the status of modern business operations by which the farmer may attain his independence and maintain his individuality. Mr. Hoover suggests the use of several hundred million dollars, if necessary, to initiate effective surplus control."

"(3)—Secretary Hoover proposes a great inland waterways improvement program, including the completion of the St. Lawrence route to the sea and the Mississippi waterway for cheap and effective transportation to domestic and foreign markets."

"(4)—He proposes the greatest possible utilization of the protective tariff for agriculture."

"(5)—He would place agriculture on a parity with other industries, not only industrially by all effective means, but in other respects. Speaking at his birthplace in West Branch, Ia., Mr. Hoover said:—

"The working-out of agricultural relief constitutes the most important obligation of the next administration. The object of our policies is to establish for our farmers an income equal to those of other occupations; for the farmer's wife the same comforts in her home as the other women in other groups; for the farm boys and girls the same opportunities in life as other boys and girls."

"These gigantic farm marketing organizations would be in a position to effectively deal with crop surpluses and other marketing problems through the millions back of them—organizations controlled by their own members organized to fight their own economic battles and to determine their own destinies through improved manufacturing, sales, distribution and collateral work."

"The cost of operation involved in handling the respective commodities will take the place of the equalization fee when such is necessary."

"This, I submit," concluded Dean Cox, is a program that goes farther than any previously considered, even by those of us who initiated and carried on the definite proposals of farm relief at and following the Des Moines Conference."

FRENCH INVENTORS SEE END OF RAIL ACCIDENTS

Annual Newspaper Contest is Planned

Urbana, Ill., Sept. 12—(AP)—Plans for the annual state newspaper contest of the Illinois Press Association held as part of the sixty-third annual meeting of that organization, October 11 to 13, at the School of Journalism, University of Illinois were announced today.

Newspapers, to be judged on general excellence of the paper as a whole in view of opportunity, are classified as follows:

1. Group of papers in small daily field (50,000 population and under).
2. Group of papers in large weekly field (2,000 populations and over).
3. Group of papers in small weekly field (under 2,000 population).

Judges of the contest were announced as follows:

Weeklies: G. C. Terry, Tri-County Press, Polo, Illinois; Charles L. Allen, School of Journalism, University of Illinois; Bert Hill, President, Southern Illinois Press Association and editor, Carbondale Record, Carbondale, Illinois.

Dailies: R. R. Barlow, School of Journalism, University of Illinois, formerly of the Minneapolis Tribune and the New York Evening Post; Willis J. Abbot, contributing editor, Christian Science Monitor, Boston, Massachusetts; William M. Harrison, managing editor of the Oklahoma City Times and president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma.

The committee in charge made it clear that county seat papers would be judged together and non-county seat papers judged together (in the proper groups) to prevent discrimination against non-county seat papers.

Entries should be addressed "County Seat Weekly, town population 3,100", etc., and two copies submitted in a single wrapper by October 1, 1928. They should be mailed to 101 University Hall, Urbana, Illinois.

Some Chinese Girls Prefer Bound Feet

Chengchow, China (AP)—Foot-binding here is being stopped by force. Shop keepers who were "urged" to paint their doors and gates a "National blue" do not resent the new reforms nearly so much as the young women and girls who have had their tightly wound foot cloths forcibly removed by the authorities in the street.

In the country districts of Honan province much trouble has been caused from time to time by an organization called the Miao lao Kuei which has been urging the women to cling to their old time custom of binding their feet despite all the orders to the contrary by government officials.

This government was launched by the priests who have been driven from their temples. The aim is to oppose Marshal Feng Yu-hsiang, the so-called Christian general, the new government and the cause of Christianity which the leaders have proclaimed are responsible for destruction of the temple idols and the order putting foot binding under the ban.

Some Wives Bring More than Others

London—(AP)—The market value of wives in England, as fixed by various judges during the divorce season just ended, ranges from half a cent to $2,500.

These figures, the judges pointed out during the Trinity term of court, depended upon the circumstances of the loss of the wives and their values in the home.

Several husbands were awarded only one farthing, about half a cent, for the loss of their wives.

A petty officer in the royal navy got the highest price for his wife. He was awarded $2,500. The sailor's story was that he was happy with his wife from the time of his wedding in 1917 until 1926, when he was ordered to the China station. When he came back he found that things had changed. A man connected with a London automobile firm had to pay the damages.

On the other hand a wife who eloped had left two young children behind brought only $750 in damages to the aggrieved husband.

One action had Canadian lumber camp setting. The husband and wife, living in a British Columbia lumber camp, met a young bachelor. By and by the wife and the family's mutual friend returned to England. The husband followed, brought suit for damages and was awarded $250 for the loss of his unfaithful wife.

THE RULES

- 1.—The idea of letter golf is to change one word to another and do it in par, a given number of strokes. Thus to change COW to HEW, in three strokes, COW, HOW, HEW, HEN.
- 2.—You can change only one letter at a time.
- 3.—You must have a complete word, of common usage, for each pump. Slang words and abbreviations don't count.
- 4.—The order of letters cannot be changed.

GERMANS ADAPT SENSE OF HUMOR TO TIMES

Munich—(AP)—Germany's comic journal "Die Fliegende Blaetter", the humorous pen and ink sketches of which were famed throughout the world for the last 84 years, is about to pass out of existence.

The weekly paper has become another victim of the altered post-war times. For its characteristic German trend, its subtle caricaturing of nationalistic traits and popular Teutonic customs there is no place in the cosmopolitan Germany of today.

As, moreover, the material financial losses the paper incurred during and since the war through the cessation of its foreign subscriptions could never be retrieved, the owners have reluctantly decided on a fusion of the "Fliegende Blaetter" with the "Meggendorfer Blaetter", a comic journal with a less distinctive German make-up, on January 1st, 1929.

Thereby Germany loses one of its most typical periodicals of the halcyon days of imperialism.

REFERENDUM ON FARM QUESTIONS PLAN OF C. OF C.

National Chamber Asks Survey of Sentiment of All Members

Agricultural questions of vital interest to Illinois and the middle west will be discussed at the annual meeting of the United States Chamber of Commerce in October, according to information received by John H. Byers, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, who has been requested to conduct a referendum here to determine local sentiment on certain important farm questions.

Ballots for the referendum, to be distributed among members of the Dixon chamber, list seven questions which are to be the basis of the agricultural committee's report at the national meeting.

The referendum asks for approval or disapproval of a positive stand by the national organization in favor of the following proposals:

Strict co-ordination of the land reclamation and reforestation policies of the federal government.

Postponement of further reclamation projects until demonstration of need for additional production.

Encouragement of co-operative marketing of agricultural products and of the forming of marketing associations along sound economic lines.

A view that reasonable protection against foreign competition for any industry which is of benefit to any considerable portion of the country is applicable to agriculture.

Farm Credit Requirements
Farm credit requirements to be met through full development and adaptation of existing facilities.

Creation of a federal farm board to report its findings and recommendations to congress.

Recommendation of adequate federal appropriation for economical and scientific agricultural research by department of agriculture.

The national chamber meets October 20.

Sudan Girls Object to Cheap Matrimony

Malakal, Anglo-Egyptian Sudan—(AP)—Because all efforts on the part of the government to lower the price of wives have failed, the current quotation on Shilluk maidens will remain at 15 cows.

This price is not absolute, however, since occasionally Sudanese girls bring as many as 40 to 60 cows into their father's exchequer. A few hundred miles to the south in the vicinity of Lake Albert, young men may purchase wives at the rate of only five cows, or three cows and 20 goats.

Government officials were anxious to introduce the Lake Albert rates here, but failure resulted immediately because of the attitude of the Shilluk girls, who are now beginning to assert their rights. When approached by officials who suggested a reduction of rates on wives, they invariably came out with this unanswerable objection:

"What! We go for cheaper than our mothers!" and there was an immediate end to the matter.

In general, young men favor the proposed change. They find the present inflated prices quite out of keeping with the cost of other saleable articles, and point out that if their fathers do not supply a portion of the purchase price, it takes them approximately seven years of hard labor to earn the number of animals required to buy a wife.

OIL LITIGATION MAY BE CLEANED UP DURING FALL

Eight Cases Pending are Slated for Action in Washington

Washington (AP)—The tide of oil may go out this fall leaving on the beach of final adjudication many of the famous court actions that began when the swirl of senate investigation caught Doheny, Fall, Stewart, Burns and others in its rush.

Eight pending cases, the residue of the oil litigation, are slated for action.

Robert W. Stewart of Chicago, chairman of the board of the Standard Oil Co. of Indiana, is scheduled to go on trial in October in the District of Columbia federal court on a charge of perjury.

Albert W. Fall, former secretary of the interior, likely will face a jury before winter. He has been ill and his trial on a charge of conspiracy to defraud has been postponed for that reason. The government is expected to demand the trial before cold weather, as Fall probably could not stand the climate here at that time.

That, probably, will constitute the court room fireworks. The other six issues are decisions on appeals.

Pending in the District of Columbia court of appeals are:

The appeal of Harry P. Sinclair from a sentence of three months in jail and a $500 fine after his conviction for refusing to answer questions of the senate committee nearly four years ago.

The appeals of Henry Mason Day, vice president of the Sinclair Exploration Co., W. J. Burns, founder of the Burns International Detective Agency, W. Sherman Burns, manager of the agency, and Sinclair, from contempt of court convictions. The four were found guilty by Justice Frederick L. Siddons in the District of Columbia supreme court for shadowing Doheny, Fall, Stewart, Burns and others in its rush.

On the contempt convictions Sinclair was sentenced to six months in jail; Day to four months; W. J. Burns to 15 days and W. Sherman Burns to pay a fine of $1,000.

In addition to the indictment against Fall for conspiracy to defraud there are pending also indictments growing out of what has been called the $100,000 loan to Fall by Edwin L. Doheny, when the money was delivered to the then secretary of the interior in the "little black satchel".

Doheny is charged with giving Fall a bribe and Fall is charged separately with accepting a bribe.

Stewart's case is regarded as outstanding. He is charged with having committed perjury in his testimony before the senate oil committee last February. The testimony had to do with his knowledge of the transactions of the Continental Trading Co. of Canada, whose trial was first tapped in the trial of Sinclair and Fall charged with conspiracy to defraud the government in negotiating the Teapot Dome lease.

Arguments are to be heard in the District of Columbia supreme court on two charges of contempt against H. M. Blackmer of Denver, originator of the oil deal through which the Continental Trading Co. was formed. Summoned as a witness in the Fall-Sinclair trial Blackmer refused to return from Europe and, under the Walsh law, the government seized $100,000 worth of his property.

If found guilty, under the act, a fine of up to $100,000 may be levied against a defendant. If the fine is less, the difference between it and the value of the seized property will be returned.

The second charge against Blackmer was filed when he refused to return as witness in the Sinclair trial last April and the court ordered another $100,000 of his property seized. No action, however, has been taken in that direction. Justice Siddons likely will hear arguments in both cases in October.

SO SOON.
Time fades the fame of many. Only a few grow in reputation with the flight of the years. A Lincoln, a Napoleon, holds the interest of the world indefinitely, while a McKinley, even a Grant, goes under the horizon after a few years. The recent great world meeting in Paris, met to outlaw war, included an incident which marks what time does to the great majority of men conspicuous for a time.

There was only one speech made—that of Briand, the host, as it were, of the assembly. He mentioned Woodrow Wilson. A newspaper cable says:

An ominous and embarrassed silence, however, followed his reference to Woodrow Wilson, who was featured as the big star at the last international gathering in this elegant room where the treaty of Versailles was signed by the Paris peace conference in 1919.

This happened after the minister from Czechoslovakia had prepared a speech extolling Wilson. When the Americans present heard this, they suggested to the French authorities that the speaking had better be confined to Briand's address of welcome. And this in less than ten years after Wilson had been likened to Christ!—Chicago Journal of Commerce.

For $1685 you can buy a STUDEBAKER PRESIDENT EIGHT

Stamina and speed proved by 30,000 MILES in 26,326 MINUTES

You can experience the thrill of driving a car identical with those which won this amazing victory over time and distance. For The President Eight roadsters and sedans which made the greatest record in the history of transportation were chosen at random from the Studebaker assembly line by A. A. A. officials.

At Atlantic City Speedway these four shining-new President Eights, their motors sealed by the A. A. A., swung wide-open into an ordeal such as no cars ever faced before. For 19 days and 18 nights the two roadsters averaged better than 68 miles per hour, the sedans 64.15 and 63.99 miles per hour! Any one of these four Studebaker Presidents might just as easily have been your new car. But for pure chance they would have been sent to some Studebaker dealer.

There's a new Studebaker President Eight sedan at (think of it!) $1685, waiting for you to command its power. From the great 109 horsepower motor to the velvet-riding ball bearing spring shackles—an exclusive Studebaker feature—it's as like the four record-breaking Presidents as the four corners of a square! Come in and drive it NOW!

SOUTH IS SCENE HARD CAMPAIGNS IN BOTH PARTIES

Most Vigorous Efforts
Since Reconstruction Days Made

BY W. F. CALDWELL
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
Atlanta—(AP)—For the first time in years the south as a whole has become a battleground in the presidential campaign.

The most vigorous effort since reconstruction days is being made by democratic party leaders to induce voters to go to the polls in November in support of Gov. Alfred E. Smith for president and Sen. Joseph T.
Robinson for vice-president.

Equal endeavor has been put forth by those favoring the republican nominees. States which usually witness little or no campaign for the republican ticket, this year see Hoover and Curtis clubs organized along state and county lines.

In some states, self-styled "anti-Smith democrats," many of whom are opposed to Smith's stand on prohibition, have withdrawn their support from the national ticket and announced their intention to seek the election of a "dry" candidate for president, irrespective of party lines.
Some among this group openly have aligned themselves with republican forces in the national campaign.
Others, however, have emphasized that while they are working for the election of Hoover, they will vote for dry democratic congressional and state candidates.

It is from the ranks of these that republican leaders hope to increase materially their strength in the south over that of former presidential years.

The democratic campaign is being carried to the voter through organizations which reach from state capitals into each county and neighborhood precinct.

This November will mark a departure, if present indications prove true, from the perfunctory voting which has made presidential elections heretofore largely a formality in the traditionally "solid" south.

The effort ranges from pleas of party regularity in some states to the invoking of a party rule in South Carolina which requires voters in the state primary to take an oath to support all party nominees, state or national, in the general election. This rule, known as Rule 32, became famous in the south this year as a result of an unsuccessful effort in the state convention for its repeal.
Later a minority who did not want to vote for Gov. Smith, unsuccessfully tried to get the state committee to abrogate it.

Newspapers in Virginia have called attention to the code of their state which they say declares that those who neglect to vote for party nominees in the general election are ineligible to take part in the next primary.

No comment has come from party leaders on this matter, but Chairman J. Murray Hooker, of the democratic state committee, said that the democrats "will organize from the West Virginia line to the Atlantic to bring out the vote for Gov. Smith."

A militant party organization in Georgia for the November election has been set up under the chairmanship of John R. Slater, mayor of Douglas. Organizations have been perfected in each county and a campaign has gotten under way for Smith and Robinson. The women are cooperating under the leadership of Mrs. Edgar Alexander, national committee-woman.

G. Ed Maddox, state chairman, has said that there is a party rule in Georgia which requires all candidates to pledge their support of the national ticket.

In the fifth Georgia congressional district, of which Atlanta is a part,
W. D. Upshaw is opposing Rep. L.
J. Steele for the democratic nomination. Upshaw has declared his opposition to Gov. Smith and has conducted a vigorous speaking campaign, basing his opposition on the ground that he is opposed to Gov. Smith's prohibition modification views.

The chairman of the fifth district democratic committee, W. Schley Howard, himself a former congressman, expressed the opinion that Upshaw was ineligible to participate in the primary of September 12, because of his opposition to Gov. Smith. He said, however, that Steele had requested that Upshaw be permitted to run and that, therefore, the executive committee would not be called to act on the question of Upshaw's eligibility.

A warning was sounded in Arkansas, the home state of the democratic vice-presidential nominee, that democrats who bolt the ticket
this year in the general election will be barred from the next primary under party rules. In some counties the challenging of voters in the primary who failed to pledge support to the standard bearers was threatened, said J. S. Utley, state chairman, said after the primary that few voters were challenged.

Any decision looking to the barring of voters is a matter for the various county committees. Mr. Utley said, adding that it was too early to predict what would be done.

Party leaders in North Carolina,
Alabama, Mississippi, Tennessee,
Louisiana, Kentucky, and Florida are actively interesting the voters to turn out at the polls in November and vote the straight ticket.

The situation in Arkansas, from the democratic standpoint, as outlined by State Chairman Utley, is representative of states where the November voting previously has been light. "Heretofore, on account of the fact that Arkansas is overwhelmingly democratic," Mr. Utley said, "less than half of the democrats of the state have voted in the presidential elections."

"The anti-Smith agitation is negligible, but it has served to call to the attention of the democrats of the state their lack of interest in former presidential elections and it will result in bringing to the polls a great many democrats who have heretofore not taken interest enough to vote."

Larry Benton Gets Stuff From These Grips on Ball

There may be some difference of opinion as to whether Larry Benton of the Giants or Burleigh Grimes of the Pirates has done the best pitching this year, but there is no doubt but what they are the best two pitchers in the National League. Benton has the best average in games won and lost and possibly has had the nicest things said about him, including favorable comparisons with the famous Christy Mathewson. The grips Benton uses in throwing his famous pitches are shown here: Below, for his knuckle ball; above, for his slow ball.

FRANCE GIVES VETERANS FIRST CHANCE AT JOBS
Paris (AP)—French employers who are inclined to forget the war have received a reminder from the department of labor.
An official circular called their attention to the law compelling industrial and commercial firms in France to give certain percentages of jobs to war veterans. The law applies to enterprises employing ten or more persons and agricultural concerns employing 15 or more persons.

At present the percentage is 10 and employers are fined 25 cents daily for each violation.

MACMILLAN AND EXPEDITION ON WAY BACK HOME

New Scientific Data Was Gathered During Arctic Visit

Wiscasset, Me.—(AP)—The Rawson-MacMillan-Field expedition is sailing back to civilization with the results of 14 months of study and adventure in the fastnesses of northern Labrador.

Early September will bring the expedition's little flotilla back to the tranquil waters of the Sheepscot river and to Wiscasset, whence the explorers and scientists sailed in June, 1922. Nearly 30 men make up the personnel of the party. Its vessels consisted of the schooner Bowdoin, the fishing schooner Radio and the motorboat Seeko.

Facts hitherto unknown, subjects hitherto only partly understood, long hidden from the ken of white men, are being brought back to be added to civilization's vast store of knowledge. Meteorology, geology, botany, zoology and anthropology have been in the making during the past 14 months.

Lieut. Comm. Donald B. MacMillan is the leader of the expedition—his eleventh voyage in 19 years of Arctic exploration. With him were six scientists of the Field Museum in Chicago, for which specimens were gathered. With MacMillan also was Kenneth Rawson, young son of Frederick Rawson, Chicago banker, who financed the expedition.

Radio waves already have carried to the world some knowledge of what the expedition accomplished. Dr. Duncan Strong, anthropologist, who undertook to live among the Mascopee Indians, has learned much of the history and daily life of these little-known northlanders.

Sites of old Eskimo villages have been uncovered. Ruins left by the so-called Tunit race have been studied. Who these forgotten folk were no one as yet knows. Possibly, says MacMillan, this race was confused with the Norsemen who, it is estimated, visited Greenland and Labrador 900 years ago. These latter ruins, MacMillan asserts, are of a certainty not Eskimo.

Exploration has been pushed along the western coast of Maffin Land. Vegetation, bird and animal life of the whole region encompassed in the survey have been studied and specimens preserved. Much information contradictory to that given by the best authorities has been gathered.

As the explorers fared inland by snowmobile—a motor car equipped with runners—Eskimos and Indians were amazed. Everywhere the vehicle went it created a sensation, and the wondering natives gathered round to examine every part of the machine.

The home of the expedition, at Bowdoin Harbor, Field Bay, was the mecca of Eskimos and Indians for miles around. During the long arctic night the natives came to bask in the glow of electric lights to watch the magic motion pictures, to listen to music and entertainment borne northward on radio waves from the United States. Visitors came to the MacMillan headquarters daily. Night after night they listened to broadcasts from New York, Boston, Chicago and dozens of other places.

All that these natives know of modern inventions—radio, electric lights, movies, motorboats, motor cars and airplanes—has been brought to them in successive MacMillan expeditions.

WHIRLWIND

BY ELEANOR EARLY

THIS HAS HAPPENED

SYBIL THORNE, Boston society girl, is preparing on a shipboard for a mad marriage with RICHARD EUSTIS, whom she has known exactly five days. To make matters worse, Sybil is really engaged (in a rather indefinite fashion) to CRAIG NEWHALL, a wealthy young bachelor who loves her devotedly.

It was to reach a sane decision regarding marriage with Craig that Sybil, accompanied by MABEL BLAKE, a social worker, had left Boston for a "peaceful" trip to Havana. On the boat she met Eustis, who began immediately to make love to her and finally—though he detests marriage—has begged her to marry him.

Swept off her feet by his impassioned ardor, Sybil seems to forget Craig and consents—to be married by the ship's captain. Mabel is to be maid of honor. The first mate will be best man. And all the passengers are to witness the ceremony. In tears Mabel dresses for the mad event and helps Sybil into her gray georgette—her improvised little wedding gown.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY

CHAPTER XVII

THERE never was a wedding like it.

"You know the old jingle, Miss Thorne," cried Mrs. Parkins. "Something old, something new, something borrowed, and something blue." I hope you remembered. It would be dreadful luck if you didn't."

"Goodness, everything I have on is old. Oh, my earrings—they're new. Rich gave them to me for a wedding present. Has anybody anything blue?"

The professor from Wellesley looked embarrassed.

"My garters are blue," she admitted.

"Great! May I borrow them?"

"Why, surely, Miss Thorne. Just a moment." And the modest lady repaired to the privacy of her stateroom.

She was back in a moment. "And here's a little handkerchief. I wish I had a nicer present."

"Bless your heart! It's sweet."

Unconcerned Sybil slipped on the garters. "There—that's blue and borrowed all at once. Where's my bridegroom?"

In a moment Richard was there. A rose in his buttonhole. Lightning cigaerets one from another, nervously.

"We tossed up to see who'd be best man—John or the first mate. Mr. Hawkins is it."

Hawkins smiled and shook hands with Sybil.

"I've been congratulating this lucky devil," he said, indicating Rich with a nod. "He's a most fortunate man."

Sybil was breathless.

"You all say such nice things!" she stammered.

"Two of the boys," he offered, "could furnish a little music if you'd like. 'Here Comes the Bride,' rendered with violin and harmonica."

Mrs. Parkins, when the musical sailors appeared, became mistress of ceremonies. "You boys come over here," she directed. "Miss Thorne and Miss Blake next the further rail. The orchestra up there. And Captain Hanna stand here, please."

"Now, when the music begins, Mr. Eustis and Mr. Hawkins walk up this way to the captain. And Miss Thorne and Miss Blake round that way. The groom and his best man will reach the altar first. This deck chair here is the altar. Wait right in front of it, you two, for the bride. Will we have a rehearsal first?"

"No, no," protested Sybil. "Rehearsals are ghastly things. Let's be natural."

"Goodbye . . . Goodbye . . . You'll look us up, won't you?"

"Goodbye . . . Goodbye . . . be there!"

proposed laws for the consideration of the 56th Illinois General Assembly.

When the Illinois Municipal League opens its annual convention here this week, no less than twenty resolutions, each of them contemplating a change in the present state statutes will be presented for adoption. These include such proposals as a three-cent tax on gasoline, and income tax, repeal of the Juul law of 1901, and constitutional home rule for Illinois communities.

Besides the mayors of the 335 members of the League, various other city officials will be in attendance at the League's meeting, September 13-14, making it one of the most important gatherings of city officials ever held in the state. In addition to the general program, special talks have been arranged for building inspectors, park officials, city and village attorneys and corporation counsel, municipal engineers and health commissioners.

Regarded as the two most important resolutions to come before the convention are those asking the league to sponsor a three-cent tax on gasoline and an income tax. The proposed tax would be equally divided between city, state and county, the distribution to be made in proportion to the amount of motor vehicle license fees collected in the governmental districts. Its chief exponent will be D. O. Thomas of Belleville, president of the Illinois association of highway supervisors.

The income tax resolution proposes "the necessary laws to accomplish a revision of our public revenue system, whereby our antiquated general property tax will be replaced largely by a modern income tax, the proceeds from which to be redistributed to local taxing agencies on an equitable basis."

Other resolutions for proposed legislation to receive consideration of the city officials include: A constitutional grant of home-

Rich, shattering the ecstasy of the sensuous night, bent to whisper in her hair. . . . She drew away as though he had hurt her.

"Cocktails in my cabin afterward," announced the captain. "Everybody invited. Ginger ale for the ladies who prefer it. Are we ready? Let's go!"

"I pronounce you man and wife."

It was over. Rich was kissing her. Rich, and everybody else. The captain and the best man, and John Arnold and the minister. Even Father Finn, and all the ladies.

Such excitement! Breakfast in the saloon. And cocktails in the captain's cabin. And Rich with his arm around her every minute.

"We'll cable your folks, darling," he had suggested.

"Oh, not yet," she protested.

PRIVATELY Sybil was thinking of Craig. By and by, she could think of some way of letting him know. Some way that would not hurt him too much. Not now, anyway. She couldn't have a happy minute if Craig was being miserable.

"All right," conceded Rich. "You're the doctor, Mrs. Eustis."

Then there were goodbyes. "So glad to have known you."

"Hasn't it been wonderful?"

"Perfectly wonderful!"

"Who'd have dreamed of such a thing!"

"Goodbye . . . Goodbye . . . You'll look us up, won't you?"

"Goodbye . . . Goodbye . . . be there!"

You lucky fellow, Eustis! Goodbye, Mrs. Eustis."

"Mabel's in our stateroom. Rich. I'll have to run down for a minute. You be getting your bags ready, dear. The captain said he'd have a car for us."

In the stateroom Sybil found poor Mabel cramming things in bags, and shedding futile tears.

"Don't know what I'm blubbering for," she announced defiantly. "Weddings always get my goat. AWFUL sentimental for an old gal."

She dried her eyes.

"Well, Missus, when do we meet again?"

Sybil embraced her wildly.

"Mab, I want to ask you a favor. Please don't write home a single word about Rich and me. I don't want a soul to know, till I tell them myself."

"Aren't you going to tell your mother, Sib?"

"No—not yet."

"Isn't Rich going to tell his people?"

"Not for a while."

"Well, I guess you've the right idea."

Mabel was thinking about Craig, too.

"You needn't worry about me, honey. I'm a regular Mason when it comes to keeping a secret. Where are you and Rich going?"

"The Seville—and we want you to have dinner with us tonight."

"My little friend John going to be there?"

"Not unless you'd like to have us ask him."

"I should say NOT! All right. I'll be there. Lord knows what I'll do till dinner-time."

"I suppose you'll go to the Passaje, as we planned?"

"Yes, I've persuaded Mrs. Jones and Alice to go there, too. They say the hotel employees don't speak any English. I'd feel so stranded all alone. Probably the Joneses are better than nobody."

"I feel awfully guilty, Mab—leaving you like this."

"Oh, that's all right. Every girl for herself."

"Well, we'll see you every day, anyhow, dear. And, if you're lonesome, you can move over to the Seville."

NIGHTS in Havana are soft and warm, and of a swooning sweetness full of glorious, fascinating odors. Strolling along the Prado, Sybil, clinging to Richard's arm, and lifting her face, felt the heavy exhilaration of stars and moon and tropical fragrance.

Until Rich, shattering the ecstasy of the sensuous night, bent to whisper in her hair. Then she drew away as though he had hurt her.

(To Be Continued)

(What was it Richard whispered to his bride? In the next chapter Sybil stands face to face with horror—and on her wedding night.)

FLIERS OF NAVY MADE RECORD IN FLEET MANEUVERS

Pilot Squadron Has Become Excellent Combat Unit

BY C. B. DICKSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer)
Washington—(AP)—Looked upon not long ago by many naval authorities as a dubious innovation, the enlisted pilots' air squadron, the only one in the military service in this country, has taken its place among the Navy's best as a combat unit, fit and ready to fight from battleships and airplane carriers.
Organized in January, 1927, to comply with the law providing that 30 percent of naval aviation pilots be of the ranks, the squadron has developed into one of the most consistent performing units in combat tactics and gunnery spotting in the navy. It has invaded that domain restricted formerly to officers and has established an enviable record of no fatalities or major crashes and only three minor mishaps.
Composed of picked chief petty officers, none of whom had less than five years' experience as utility pilots, the unit has passed through all the training given officers, squadrons, and by its excellent performance in maneuvers and its orderly appearance, it has won the commendation of the highest naval authorities.
The squadron has become an incentive to enlisted personnel they feel, since it is recognized as representing the highest type of men and service for those in the ranks. The unit is provided with the finest of modern aircraft, and maximum accuracy in piloting is required.
Although the navy has had some enlisted aviators since the World war, they were used as utility pilots and mechanics. One of the objectives of the squadron has been to test out the feasibility of placing enlisted pilots in command of planes.
Lieut. Comm. G. F. Chapline, who has been given credit for the development of the unit, is convinced that the tactical employment of enlisted pilots associated in squadrons with officers, readily adapts itself to fighting plane organization. He took the squadron through the formative stage, every phase of training and built it up from 12 to 18 planes, 14 enlisted and six officer pilots and a ground crew of 75.
With an officer leading each section of three planes, the training of the unit was begun in combat tactics at the naval air station at San Diego. After six months, the squadron took its regular place among the crack organizations in gunnery spotting and fighting units of the battle fleet. After that it was shifted to swift single seat planes aboard battleships, learned the art of catapulting, perfected its gunnery and learned gun firing in competition with airplanes carrier base fighting planes.

Th' reason so many politicians are reportin' that th' election in their states is goin' t' be mighty close is that th' two national committees are goin' t' spend over $10,000,000 this fall. Ther's lots o' difference in girls. Some o' them pretend they're not a bit tired, an' others hain't afraid t' sit down anywhere.

Planes of the enlisted unit, carry a color band around the fuselage, and an odd device upon their brilliant blue, red and orange tails.
Trim and smart and tuned to the last degree by proud and skillful hands, the distinctively colored squadron stand out in appearance as well as in performance when the men of the ranks execute their battle formation.

After taking an active part in the Army and Navy joint maneuvers in Hawaii this spring, the squadron was given 18 new pursuit planes and placed aboard the aircraft carrier Langley as a full fledged combat unit, under command of Lieut. Comm. James M. Shoemaker.

CHECKING TIME OF AIR RACERS
TO LOS ANGELES

Earl Rowland is Certain Winner of Class A Event, Report

Mines Field, Los Angeles, Sept. 11.—(AP)—While national air race officials checked elapsed time of the 21 Class A airplanes that arrived here yesterday in the first of the feature transcontinental air derbies, two more caravans of aerial racers approached the finish line here on the trek from New York.
Two fliers in the national derby from Canada also neared their goal as the hour for the last and greatest derby of all, the non-stop flight from New York approached.
Earl Rowland of Wichita, Kansas was regarded as certain winner of the $5,000 first prize.
Rowland won several thousand dollars in lap prizes offered by cities along the route, having led the initial caravan in its later stage. Rowland estimated he flew 2900 miles.

The trail-blazing Cessna was believed down nearly an hour ahead in elapsed time of the American Moth flown by Robert Dake of Pittsburgh, Pa., who landed the dust stirred by Rowland's propeller, and who was believed winner of the $2,500 second prize.

Tex Rankin of Portland, Ore., piloting a Waco, landed third; followed in order by W. N. Emery, Jr., Bradford, Pa., in a special racing plane, and Theodore W. Kenyon of Boston, flying a Challenger.

E. E. Ballough, of Chicago, who has a passenger in his Laird plane, Charles D. Dickenson, A 71-year-old aviation enthusiast from Pittsburgh, led the Class B Planes into El Paso and apparently leads that division in elapsed time. John H. Livingston of Aurora, Ill., piloting a Waco, landed second, more than 30 minutes behind Ballough. John H. Woodbin, Wau-sau, Wis., piloting a Waco was in third, Charles Meyers, Troy, Ohio, flying a Waco landed fourth and T. A. Wells of Wichita, Kansas in a Travelair, was fifth.
Robert Cantwell of Duncan, Okla., in his Lockheed-Vega monoplane, led the three Class C fliers into El Paso and was believed to have increased his reported hour's lead in elapsed time.

Marion—(AP)—For the first time since the Spanish American war, the veterans have formed a camp in Williamson county, Illinois. Over fifty enrolled on the new charter and at the organization meeting the following officers were elected:

Herrin—(AP)—Opening of State Highway 148 to Marion last week and announcement that the slab on Route 13 between Carmi and Enfield would be opened the middle of this month brings two more sections out of the mud this winter. Completion of the grading between Harrisburg and Shawneetown on Route 13 also eliminates a bad detour and makes that route open all the way from the Ohio river to St. Louis now.

Jacksonville—(AP)—Carnivals and tent shows routing Jacksonville hereafter will pay double toll. A municipal ordinance practically doubling license fees for travelling amusements has been adopted by the city council.

Rock Island—(AP)—A close check on the poundage eliminated and added to the girls' Augustana College gridders is being kept. "Shorty" Almquist, former Gopher footballer, coach of the Vikings, inaugurated a weight chart for the first and second squads.

Charleston—(AP)—Burning of an elevator near Mattoon is credited with the death of many fish in the Riley Creek near Charleston.

The elevator contained grain feed treated with molasses and oil. The burned refuse was poured into the creek and the mixture proved fatal to fish. The pollution was discovered just in time to prevent the water from entering the private fishing pond of the Charleston country club.

Marion—(AP)—Former Senator Thomas P. Gore, the blind statesman from Oklahoma, will be the principal speaker Democratic day at the Williamson county fair here Thursday, Sept. 13.

Moline—(AP)—More than 200 bakers from northwestern Illinois and Iowa are expected here today for the northwestern sectional meeting of the Associated Bakers of Illinois.

Galesburg—(AP)—Richard Baxter coach at Knoxville High School for the last two years, is the new athletic head at Macomb high school this fall. Baxter is a graduate of Lombard college and has had an unusual record at Knoxville. His track team won the Knox county championship last spring and every dual meet. In basketball his teams were victorious in 20 out of 24 games, two of the wins being shutouts. In football Knoxville won six out of eight games last fall. Succeeding Baxter at Knoxville will be Wendell Stamps, graduate of Lombard last June and football star there for three years.

Springfield—(AP)—Recording an increase of approximately 500,000 tons, the state department of mines and minerals today reported a production of 3,835,318 tons for the soft coal mines of Illinois during August. Last month's production was 3,136,914 tons, and the June mark was 2,923,605 tons. Although counted a substantial increase in production, the gain was made with comparatively small increase in the working forces of mines. The report showed that 36,681 miners were employed as compared to 36,424 in the previous month.

Seven minor fatalities occurred, two each in Christian and Franklin counties, and one each in LaSalle, Vermilion and Williamson mines. Mines were worked an average of 17.1 days in the month, a gain over July of more than two days.

MEAL TIME

By LeRoy A. Wilkes, M. D., Director, Division of Medical Service, American Child Health Association

(This series of articles is prepared under the direction of the Gorgas Memorial, which is organized to perpetuate the life work of the late Major-General Gorgas in preventing unnecessary illness. The diet for the toddler (two to six years) should provide those things which are essential for nutrition, growth and development during this important period.

There are four main groups of foods necessary to maintain a balanced diet, i. e.

1. The body builders (proteins) such as meats, baked beans.
2. The energy givers (carbohydrates) such as potatoes.
3. The heat producers (fats) such as butter, olive oil, cream.
4. The body regulators, which supply the minerals and those mysterious growth controllers, the vitamins, as well as the undigested waste material which daily aids in emptying the bowels.

Each of these groups of foods has certain functions to perform in the process of growth and development. A balanced meal has some representative of each of these groups of food-stuffs.

Other things beside food are necessary. The advantage of coming to the dinner table in a pleasant frame of mind is well known and the unfavorable effect of fatigue from excessive play is also known to many parents. Disciplinary measures are not to be administered at the table. One may send the child away from the table if necessary but the conversational subjects at table should be pleasant, and even the toddler's right to indulge in his turn should be recognized. Polite attention should be given to the speaker. This emotional balance and control are assured. If the child is tired, allow him to lie down and rest before eating, else he cannot properly digest his food nor get the greatest benefit from it. The best food carefully selected and prepared, daintily served and eaten is of no benefit unless the body processes function properly. To digest and assimilate is to replace the worn out cells and add new ones for growth and development. The body can only do this work effectively when it is in fit condition from head to toes. The process of digestion is not dependent on the stomach and intestines alone—all the rest of the body, including the brain, plays a very important part.

The essentials then for proper nutrition, growth and development are:

1. Food.
2. Fun.
3. Fitness.
4. Fellowship.

And the toddler should be assured his rightful share and be shown due consideration.
